and still they come. That is the whole story in a nutshell of the progress of the Kingston Exposition since the last chapter was written. They came one by one in couples, they came in droves, and they came in droves Thursday until it was found that approximately three thousand people had again found their way into the big tent in which is housed the period of one week Kingston's finest and best. Thursday being the first day for a trip a good number of people from outside of the city decided to come and see themselves all of the things the Exposition had been bragging about for so long. Most of these people visited the big tent in the afternoon. As a result Thursday's attendance was larger than any year or last year.

The afternoon crowd had no more left for their homes than the morning crowd began to come in. It began to come soon after 10 o'clock and they continued to come until well after ten o'clock. Those coming in early spent most of their time at the booths looking at the various articles which were on exhibition. If anyone chooses to go to the entrance of the tent for the time he will not find it very difficult to pick out the people who are buying automobiles. Such people as enter the tent go right ahead and begin to inspect their favorite car. Other people go to the right and begin to inspect the things which are of more interest to them than automobiles.

Most people being interested in a good many of them stop at the booth of the Kingston Trust company to look over the statement of this bank and decide whether or not they will put their money here when they get some away. If they stop long enough they are usually presented with a holder and also a very handy thing.

It is long enough after supper, casual onlooker will see most of the visitors stop at the hot dog stand to pick up a hot dog. The next place which attracts the attention of a good many people is the booth occupied by Herzog. Most people have ridden in an automobile at some time or other and are interested in the snubbers which are being demonstrated in so plain a manner.

The musically inclined may then go to the booth of Frederick C. Myers and inspect some of his new pianos and then once in a while you may see some young man and look at the good looking ladies which are seated inside the booth at various times. The ladies stop once in a while to look at pianos of course. After they have taken a look at the booth most of the visitors see a Loree coal breaker looming up and they make a straight line to it and there spend a good deal of time figuring out how their coal will be mined this winter.

After this they may spend a little while visiting some of the booths which interest them to a lesser degree depending on what their interests in life are but invariably by 10 o'clock they have found their way to the amusement tent where they sit but where a good many of them.

The entertainment Thursday night is exceptionally interesting to local people for it was not the night that Herman Ralph Mann made the appearance that he has made in number of years as a juggler. Ralph's period of rest, during the time that he has served as one of the city fathers, has not detracted from his cleverness in the least. He juggles wheelbarrows, step ladders, garden trucks, horsewhips, and other implements on the end of his hand just as he could in years gone by. Alderman Mann's act brought a round of applause at the end of which would tickle the cockles of the actor's heart.

Besides this act the Jones Brothers, formerly with Ringling Brothers, entertained the large audience with some excellent acrobatic acts.

GIFT BABY ON VIEW TONIGHT

So that Guessers Will Know the Prize to Be Awarded Tomorrow Night Is Not "Phony."

It's a boy, a fine healthy baby boy.

On account of the widespread interest which has been taken in the Baby Contest at the Kingston Exposition the committee in charge of the awarding of the real live baby has decided to have the infant on exhibition this evening at the Chamber of Commerce booth at the Exposition. Many people have circulated a report that the baby to be given away to the person guessing nearest the correct attendance at the Exposition, was only a walking doll. Others were of the opinion that it was a cruel act and should not be allowed so the committee has decided to place the infant boy on exhibition this evening so that all may see it and perhaps then after seeing it put in their guess.

The baby, a bright little fellow able to walk is looking for a home. His mother has too many children to take care of and is willing to part with the boy. Someone in the county can make a good home for the little fellow and the committee will see to it that the baby goes to someone who is responsible.

Perhaps the method of disposing of the child is a bit odd but the mother is willing to do this in order that her baby will be sure of a good home.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR TONIGHT

Will Start at 8:30 Because There's So Much of It—Boys Band Tomorrow.

The entertainment program at the Exposition will commence at 8:30 o'clock this evening. On account of the five big vaudeville acts and amateur night the committee has decided to commence the program a half hour earlier than on other nights. Amateur night has brought out a large number of applicants who will go on and try for the prizes. This is an addition to the regular entertainment program makes this evening's program one of the best of the entire week.

Miss Augusta Holz, soprano, who has pleased several large audiences at the Exposition will appear Saturday and give selections accompanied by the Endicott Boys Band.

The band will arrive in Kingston by automobile truck from Poughkeepsie about 11 a. m. and will make their headquarters at the Y. M. C. A. During their stay in town they will be entertained at the homes of various members of the Rotary Club. The boys will be met at the Y. M. C. A. by automobiles and escorted to their various stopping places. The boys will be guests of the members of the Rotary Club from Saturday morning until they arrive in town until Sunday morning when they will conclude their tour.

The Endicott Boys Band is one of the largest bands of the kind in the country and comes to Kingston with 60 pieces. On account of this attraction the price of admission on Saturday afternoon and evening will be fifty cents. This will include admission to the Exposition and to the band concert as well. Two concerts are given Saturday, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. Saturday night at 10 o'clock the winner of the real live baby which is being given away at the Exposition will be awarded the baby. The presentation of the baby to its new parents will be made public from the stage in the entertainment tent.

SHANDAKEN VOTES 3 FINE BRIDGES ALONG CATSKILL MOUNTAIN TRAIL

At Special Election $51,000 is Authorized to Replace Phoenixia, Chichester and Mount Tremper Structures With Modern Ones That Motorists Can't Knock Down.

A special election was held at Misner's store at Allaben, town of Shandaken, Thursday, at which time three propositions were voted upon. The entire three propositions were carried by a large majority. The first proposition was for the raising of $18,000 for the erection of a new bridge at Phoenixia to replace the old one which was knocked down by a motorist early in the summer. This was carried with 58 voting in favor and 3 against. At the present time the traveling public is compelled to use a temporary bridge which was hastily constructed over the creek just above the site of the old one. Immediately after the accident which resulted in the old bridge crashing into the creek, Supervisor Brethaupt and the town officials asked for bids for the erection of the temporary bridge. This work was carried on in a very rapid manner and within a very brief time a good substantial one way wooden bridge was thrown across the creek. It was possible to make a detour around the wreck but this made necessary a long detour over a one way road. In summer with the tourist season at its height this was impractical and the town officials deserve considerable credit in having had erected in a short space of time a temporary bridge.

The second proposition was the raising of $15,000 for a new bridge at Chichester. This was carried by a vote of 37 in favor and 13 against. The third proposition was to raise $18,000 for a new bridge at the corner at Mt. Tremper. The vote was 37 in favor and 12 against. This bridge is a narrow iron bridge located at a very dangerous corner where traffic is heavy during the summer months.

Plans for the bridge at Phoenixia will call for a concrete and iron girder bridge similar to the one located just beyond the Cantine farm at Saugerties.

Another bridge which the town officials are planning to rebuild is the narrow one way iron bridge at the town line between Olive and Shandaken. A wooden bridge is now being erected to furnish a detour and as soon as the summer traffic slackens up this work will be commenced.

Advertisements for bids for the construction of the bridge at Phoenixia will be commenced as soon as plans and specifications for contractors can be secured.

UNITED STATES EXTENDS POLITICAL RECOGNITION TO MEXICAN REPUBLIC

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Aug. 31.—The United States has extended political recognition to Mexico.

Official announcement of the resumption of diplomatic relations between the two governments was made at the state department today.

HELD HEARINGS IN RAID CASES

Kingston Proprietors of Refreshment Placed Raided by Federal Agents Wednesday Had Hearing in New York Thursday Morning.

The five proprietors of refreshment places in Kingston which were raided by federal prohibition agents Wednesday afternoon appeared in the federal post-office building in Park Row, New York, Thursday morning for hearings.

John Meyer, 241 Hasbrouck avenue, where some beer was seized, was discharged when a test of the liquid seized showed that it was not in excess of the lawful amount of alcohol. He was represented by A. J. Cook.

Frank Disch, 536 Broadway, where four bottles of beer were seized, had his hearing adjourned to September 6. He was represented by A. J. Cook.

Emanuel Tsachakis, who conducts the Rossmore Hotel on Canal street, was represented by Robert G. Groves, and waived examination to be held for the action of the federal grand jury. A quart and a half of alleged gin was seized in the hotel.

Eugene Spadafora of 39 Sycamore street, was held to await further examination. He was represented by a New York attorney.

What disposition was made of the case of Frank Ulrich, 31 Mill street, was not ascertained.

1,000,000 TONS OF WELSH COAL SOUGHT.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Cardiff, Wales, Aug. 31.—Industrial cities in Pennsylvania were reported today to be seeking 1,000,000 tons of Welsh coal, in view of the threatened American coal strike.

Exportation of British coal to the United States started a week ago with a shipment of 15,000 tons. At that time it was stated that Welsh mine owners were receiving sufficient orders to make shipments weekly. English trade unionists are protesting against the Welsh miners producing coal for export to United States if the American miners strike.

League Council to Act.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Geneva, Aug. 31.—The council of the League of Nations, which was scheduled to meet here today, was expected to make representations to both Italy and Greece to preserve peace on the Mediterranean.

Greece to Ask Redress.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. London, Aug. 31.—Greece will demand satisfaction from Italy for the burning of the Greek flag at Trieste by Fascist, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens today.

Jury Drawing.

There will be a drawing of jurors on Saturday at the county clerk's office to attend a term of county court to convene at the court house at 2 p. m. September 17.

High Falls Dance.

There will be a dance at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, Tuesday evening, September 4. Music will be furnished by Balfe's orchestra.

ITALY REJECTS GREEK NOTE

"Proper Decisions" Have Been Taken, Says Government—Italian Shipping Warned—Hostilities Apparently Near.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Rome, Aug. 31.—Premier Mussolini reported to the cabinet this afternoon that the Greek reply to the Italian ultimatum is not acceptable. He said that "proper decisions" have been taken as a result.

King Victor Emmanuel, who has been living at his summer palace on the coast, is returning to Rome.

Paris, Aug. 31.—The Italian government today broadcasted a wireless warning to Italian ships not to touch at Greek ports, said a Rome dispatch to L'Intransigent.

London, Aug. 31. (5:30 p. m.)—A dispatch from Rome quoted the Italian ministers of war and marine as saying that the Greek note is not acceptable and that "the necessary decisions have been taken."

(By International News Service.)

Although no hostile move has yet been made by either side the menace of war still hovered over Southern Europe today as a result of the Greek-Italian dispute. The chief fear now is for peace in the Balkans.

Anti-Greek disorders were reported from Italy and anti-Italian demonstrations from former Austrian territory which both Italy and Jugoslavia claimed after the World War.

The Italian cabinet met at Rome and discussed the Greek reply to the Italian ultimatum. According to the semi-official Italian newspaper Messaggero the Greek note was not acceptable.

Greek newspapers are urging the Athens government to appeal to the League of Nations at once. A press report from Athens said Greece would demand satisfaction for the burning of the Greek flag by Fascist at Trieste.

There was unconfirmed report that a squadron of Italian war ships had sailed for Corfu.

England is exerting pressure to prevent hostilities.

Rome, Aug. 31.—The semi-official newspaper Messaggero stated today that Premier Mussolini regards the Greek reply to the Italian ultimatum as unsatisfactory.

The cabinet met at noon and discussed the Greek note. It was explained that the admiralty and foreign office would issue statements later in the day.

An unconfirmed report was current that a squadron of Italian war ships had sailed for Corfu.

Greek journalists representing anti-Italian newspapers were ordered expelled.

London, Aug. 31.—British foreign office officials declared this afternoon in the event of war between Italy and Greece, Great Britain would endeavor to restrict the zone of hostilities, preventing other powers from being dragged in.

There is considerable activity at the British naval base of Malta in the Mediterranean.

British newspapers, in discussing war possibilities, point out that Italy outnumbered Greece as to army, navy and air forces three to one. But there is much conjecture as to the attitude of Jugoslavia and Turkey in the event of war.

Jugoslavia is angry over failure to acquire Fiume and the Turks are disgruntled over the loss of African territory to Italy.

Most British newspapers believed that Mussolini acted too hastily and drastically in sending an ultimatum to Athens as the five men who were assassinated were attached to an international organization not of one strictly Italian nationality.

Advices from Athens said Greece accepts many of the Italian ultimatum demands, including the following:

"An expression of regret for the killing of Italians on the Albanian frontier; consent to holding a memorial service; agrees to salute the Italian flag; consents to give military honors to the victims; agrees to an Italian officer upon the investigating board. Greece, however, refuses to impose capital punishment upon convicted persons or payment of fifty millions lira indemnity."

London, Aug. 31.—The powers were reported today to be exerting pressure upon Premier Mussolini of Italy to prevent the Italians from going to war against Greece over the assassination of Italian members of the Albanian boundary commission.

The real situation in Italy is somewhat obscure owing to censorship.

The first battle squadron of the British navy has been ordered to assemble at Invergordon, but admiralty officials claim that this activity is without significance. British destroyers have been ordered to concentrate at an unnamed rendezvous.

COOLIDGE STARTS PONY EXPRESS RACE

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Aug. 31.—President Coolidge at 11 o'clock today pressed a gold telegraph key in the White House starting the pony express race from St. Joseph, Mo., to San Francisco, Cal.

The racers carrying a letter from the president to Mayor Ralph of San Francisco, are scheduled to arrive on September 10.

The telegraph instrument which sped the first pony away on the long race was used by President Taft in opening the Alaskan Yukon Pacific exposition in 1909.

Abandon Hope Of Preventing Strike

Information From Conference is That Both Operators and Miners Qualifiedly Reject Pinchot Plan—Door Open For Negotiation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 31.—All hope of preventing the 1923 anthracite coal strike was abandoned here today.

Behind the closed doors of Governor Pinchot's office at the state house here, miner and operator delegates presented their answers to the peace plan submitted to them by the state's chief executive last Wednesday.

As a result the mines will close down at midnight, the hour the present wage and working contract between employer and employee expires.

But through Governor Pinchot's program, the way has been paved to the reopening of negotiations between the union officials and the operators' representatives.

The Pinchot plan will be the ground on which further negotiations and eventual settlement will be based.

It was the plan of Governor Pinchot to keep all proceedings of the meeting secret. He planned to make the announcement of its result himself.

Shortly before the meeting opened the publicity department of the operators' committee issued a statement setting forth the owners' views.

Like the miners, the operators made a "qualified objection."

On one point—that of wages—the operators were definite.

"We are still firmly of the opinion no general increase in the wages of anthracite mine workers at this time is justified," John L. Lewis, president of the union mine workers, ordered a written statement of the miners' position prepared and released by his secretary after the miners had entered the conference room.

Lewis's statement gives his position as:

"First—As for the eight hour day, the principle of the eight hour day already has been agreed upon.

"Second—The ten percent increase wage offer as affecting the contract miners is a step in the right direction. The figure, however, is not sufficient for the day men—the lowest paid men in the industry.

"Third—The mine workers regret the governor's refusal to incorporate the check-off in his recommendation. No valid objection can be made to the check-off unless one persuades himself to believe that the extension of a courtesy to the union, can be construed as reprehensible."

Here Lewis went into detail to show that "the important producers" of hard coal have the check-off in their soft coal mines. He named the Susquehanna Collieries Company as an example. He termed such companies a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in their labor policies.

"As representatives of the United Mine Workers we feel that in the absence of any valid objection to the check-off by the anthracite operators, we are entitled to recognition on this point."

"Fourth—On collective bargaining, we assume the governor means operators would forego their practice of contracting with individual employees for service at less than the prescribed rates. With this recommendation we find ourselves in entire accord."

"We feel that your action has paved the way to a re-opening of joint wage negotiations," Lewis told the governor.

STONEHAM INDICTED FOR PERJURY IN FULLER BUCKET SHOP PROBE

By Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, Aug. 31.—Charles A. Stoneham, chief owner of the New York National League Baseball Club, was indicted today by the federal grand jury on a charge of perjury growing out of the investigation of the $5,000,000 failure of the brokerage firm of E. M. Fuller & Company.

The charge was based on testimony given by Stoneham at the bankruptcy referee's hearings in the Fuller & Company failure.

Stoneham appeared for arraignment and was held in $5,000 bail.

No other indictments were returned by the grand jury which now has indicted five persons in the bucket-shop investigation.

The others are E. M. Fuller and William F. McGee, partners in the firm; William Fallon and Eugene McGee, attorneys, who conducted their defense in the state courts on charges of backdating and Stoneham.

Stoneham gave Fuller and McGee, former sheriff, aggregating $147,500, the perjury charge. It was said, based on the allegation that whereas Stoneham testified the various sums were loans to the brokers, the money actually represented a fourth interest in the firm.

In his testimony at referee's hearings, Stoneham admitted $147,000 had been paid to the brokers but made no mention of one check for $25,000. It was the tracing of this missing check and the investigation of it that led to the indictment, according to the district attorney's office.

The checks were turned over to Fuller & Company by Foley, who testified also at the referee's hearings that Fuller and McGee were authorized to endorse them for him.

At the hearings both Stoneham and Foley said the checks represented loans to tide the brokers over tight places.

The work of the grand jury has not been completed, according to information obtained at the federal building. The probe will continue and further indictments are expected, it was said.

A Woman Killed Rothenburg Lad, Says His Father, Who Exonerates Aunt, Now Being Held

Child Knew Something Murderess Wished Concealed—Killing May Have Been Unintentional.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Newark, N. J., Aug. 31.—Charles Rothenberg, wealthy hat manufacturer, arrived at his home at 17 Keer avenue, last night by automobile from Windham, N. Y., carrying across his knees a coffin containing the body of his seven-year-old son, Howard, who was found there Wednesday bound, gagged and strangled to death in a clump of bushes 200 feet from the state road back of an abandoned sawmill. Mrs. Rothenberg made the trip with him and is under the care of a physician.

No suspicion is attached to Mrs. Rothenberg's sister, Mrs. Sol Litt, of 1134 East Tenth street, Brooklyn. The father said, although she is being held at Windham as a material witness together with Anna Soplin, aged 16, Howard's nursemaid, who has been employed by the family for three weeks. Mrs. Rothenberg said that Mrs. Litt had not been conducting stories regarding the boy's disappearance; that they were due entirely to the fact that she was awakened and across questioned in the middle of the night, and that she had naturally become confused. Mrs. Litt and his wife, Rose, were close to one another, he said, and Howard's aunt thought as much of the lad as though he had been her own child.

Mr. Rothenberg sent a telegram last night to the state police at Windham making specific charges regarding the slaying of his son. The murder was committed by a woman, he said, who feared exposure if the child told something he had learned concerning her. Mr. Rothenberg said he was in doubt as to whether the murder was deliberate or whether Howard had died from the effects of a gagging that had been intended to frighten him into silence. He intended motoring to Windham yesterday to visit his family, he said, and thought that the murderess had been spurred to action by the imminence of his appearance.

One important bit of evidence, Mr. Rothenberg said, was the finding of a woman's white scarf and strands of light brown hair near the body. Mrs. Rothenberg told her husband, according to his story, that she heard screams about 8:45 o'clock Wednesday morning, but paid no attention to them. When Howard failed to appear for breakfast, she asked Anna, what had become of him. Anna told her, Mrs. Rothenberg said, that they had left the house together and that she last saw the boy walking toward the creek with two men who had fishing poles in their hands.

The Albert K. Smiley Memorial Tower Was Dedicated At Lake Mohonk On Thursday

Monument to Founder of Famous Mountain Resort Visible From Half of Ulster County—Also Fire Tower.

The Albert K. Smiley Memorial tower on Sky Top at Lake Mohonk was dedicated at 11 o'clock Thursday morning with appropriate ceremony in the presence of about three hundred of the guests at this famous summer resort.

The tower, which was constructed as a memorial to the founder of the famous summer resort by guests at Lake Mohonk House, was presented by Charles F. Miller of Lansing, Penn., chairman of the committee in charge of the memorial, and was accepted by Daniel Smiley of Lake Mohonk House. The principal address was delivered by President Faunce of Grand University, Providence, R. I.

The tower, which is of stone construction, is 65 feet in height and can be easily seen throughout the Rondout creek valley, and from the high points in Kingston. It is square in construction and a massive structure, each face being thirty feet in width.

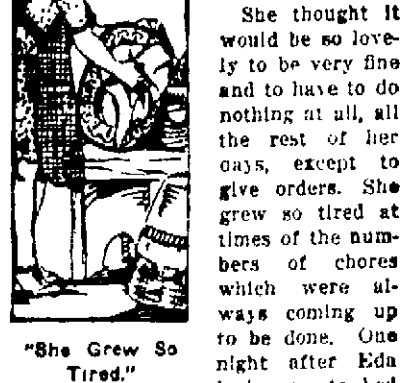

While the tower was erected by the guests at Lake Mohonk as a memorial to Mr. Smiley it will also be used by the state conservation commission as a station for the fire warden as it commands a magnificent view of the Shawangunk Mountains.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

EDA'S FARM KING

Now Eda was very anxious to leave the farm and go into society when she grew older and she thought about it and wondered how it could be.

"She Grew So Tired."

She thought it would be so lovely to be very fine and to have to do nothing at all, all the rest of her days, except to give orders. She grew so tired at times of the numbers of chores which were always coming up to be done. One night after Eda had gone to bed she was thinking about a wonderful future and planning her best make-believe plans when suddenly a little Fairy appeared.

"Hello Eda," said the Fairy. "Why, hello," said Eda. "My name is Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes," said the Fairy, "and the Dreamland King and the Fairy Wondrous Secrets said you might want to ask me to grant you some wishes. Is there anything you wish?"

"Oh, Fairy," said Eda, "I would like to be in high society when I grow up and I'd even like to begin now."

So before Eda knew it she was with many little girls who were so beautifully dressed and they always had people about them, maids and governesses, and they couldn't do anything by themselves.

Eda wasn't used to that at all. She had always been used to having a lot of freedom and independence. And when she suggested that they all go barefoot everyone was horrified at her. They didn't know what to make of that at all. And oh, Eda wondered after a time how she could ever stand the life even after she grew up.

For there were so many teas and card parties and luncheons and there were no picnics and no berry and nut hunts. The life ahead looked so dull and the life now was all that Eda could possibly bear. How she did wish she hadn't asked Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes to grant such a silly wish.

One day she was talking to a lot of her new-found friends. They were all boasting of how rich their daddies were and of how famous they were and of their grandfathers and grandmothers.

They didn't quite understand why Eda was one of them in such an unexpected and unexplained fashion and they wanted to make sure that she really belonged.

So they began talking of their riches and of their fine aristocracy or ancestors, which showed that they didn't amount to much when they boasted so much.

"My father was the founder of a coaching club in the most fashionable city," said one as though that were of great historical importance.

"My grandfather was the founder of an automobile racing club and my grandmother's father was the one who originated the riding crops now in use in all the smart riding clubs," said another.

"My grandfather was the brass tacker who made the great family tortoise out of brass tacks," said a third.

"My father is known as the Curtin Rod King," said a fourth, "and his father before him was famous for being the founder of the Tuesday Evening Club dinners."

On they boasted of their relatives who rode along the best bridle paths in city parks and Eda thought it very strange that those who said they believed in a democracy should call all their rich relatives "Kings" when they became prosperous.

"And who was your father?" they asked her.

"He is really a king of the earth," Eda answered, and they all laughed and said, "A king of the earth, how could he be that?"

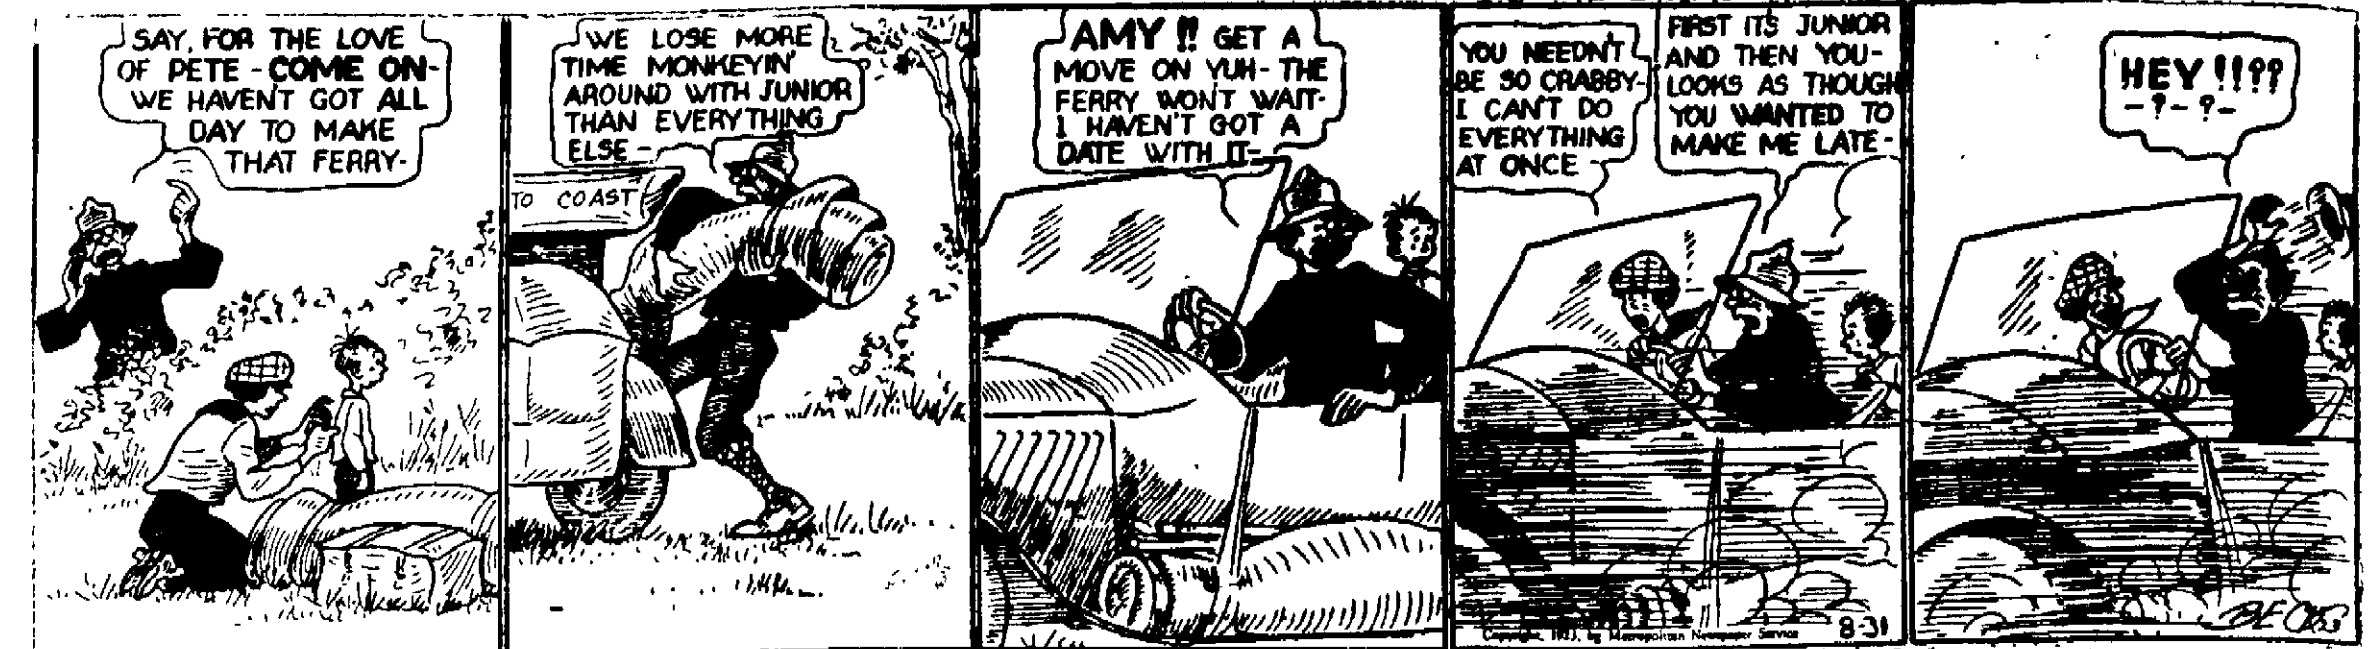

"He is a farmer," Eda went on, "and without farmers your fathers would never have been able to do anything, for the earth gives us what we eat and what we need. But while you would call my daddy a Farm King if you had him, I just call him my dear farmer daddy and shall from now on, for I don't like society. I want to go back to the farm! I want to go where things are happy and simple and real!"

And as she said this the children seemed to vanish and Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes had taken Eda back, and the whole long dream had only taken one night of real time. But oh, how happy Eda was that no one had known she had ever deserted the farm and its dear people and its dear animals for what was so curiously thought to be famous society.

Avoid extremes, and shun the fault of such. Who still are pleased too little or too much. At every trifle scorn to take offense. That always shows great pride or little sense.

A VARIETY OF SHERBETS.

In the heat of the summer when we crave something refreshing and heavier desserts do not appeal to the appetite, there is nothing better than a fruity sherbet.

Grapefruit and Apricot. — Combine one and one-half cups of sugar, one cup of water and boil five minutes; cool thoroughly. Extract the juice from grapefruit, taking one and one-half cups; to it add one cup of sifted cooked apricots and one-half table-spoonful of lemon juice. Mix with the cold sugar syrup, pour into a freezer and partially freeze, using three parts ice to one of sugar, when the sherbet is of the consistency of mush, fold in one egg white which has been beaten stiff and to which two table-spoonfuls of sugar have been added. Serve garnished with maraschino cherries cut into bits. As the acidity of it varies, taste the mixture to be sure it is sweet enough before freezing.

Banana Sherbet.—To one and one-half cups of sugar add one cup of water, boil for five minutes. Cool, Mash six medium-sized bananas and press through a ricer. To the banana pulp add two cups of orange juice and two table-spoonfuls of lemon juice. Add to the sugar syrup, pour into a freezer and partially freeze. Beat an egg white until stiff, add two table-spoonfuls of sugar, fold into the sherbet and continue freezing.

Raspberry Ice.—Take four cups of water, two cups of sugar, boil five minutes. Cool and add one and one-half cups of raspberry juice and the juice of half a lemon. Freeze as usual.

Walnut Maple Ice Cream.—Scald two and one-half cups of milk, pour over three well-beaten eggs and one-third of a cup of sugar, one cup of maple syrup and cook until the custard coats the spoon. Strain and cool. Beat one cup of cream until thick, add it to the custard with one-half cup of chopped walnuts. Freeze as usual.

WEST PARK.

West Park, Aug. 30.—There will be a very important meeting of the W. P. N. A. in the school house on Wednesday evening at 7:30. The people of the community are especially urged to be present at this meeting. School will open on Tuesday morning.

There will be a dance in the school house on Friday evening.

Postmaster and Mrs. Albert Kirkland are rejoicing over the arrival of a young son born on Wednesday morning. Postmaster Kirkland wears a broad smile.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walters are entertaining company from out of town.

Miss Dorothy Travis is visiting relatives in Peekskill. Thomas Wynne has returned to his home in the Catskills, after visitingly urged to be present at this meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Britte and family of Brooklyn, are spending two weeks at the DuMont boarding house.

Mrs. George Green spent Wednesday in Poughkeepsie.

Near the Year's End.

The last orchids of the year bloom in September and October. They are the ladies' treasures, probably the most common of the orchid family in eastern North America, says Nature Magazine.

All country dwellers know their stuff, upright, slightly twisted blossoms. The two most common are the nodding ladies' treasures and the slender ladies' treasures.

designs that will just as ac-fair wearers. The possibilities thrilling!

The popular idea, often expressed, negligees are only for the woman home who spends hours in her each day is distinctly errorneous. To have at least one decorative not necessarily expensive lounging to do, after the prosaic work-adones are discarded, is a most refreshing tonic to a busy woman. The lady who rushes from one conference to another all day in her smart nevertheless uninspiring dark will be immeasurably rested by a short half hour in a lovely pale of filmy chiffon that will absolutely dispel all thoughts of the business of the day. A simple model in of de chine, chosen in her favorite color, should be just as much a part of a stonographer's wardrobe as her faded blouses. And the busy housewife will find herself walled away from tiresome domestic problems by slipping into a soft clinging satin thing frames. Verily, a decorative negligee should be one of the outstanding features of sheer beauty uninfluenced by utility in the wardrobe of every woman. It should be a symbol of woman's inalienable right to ornamental abandon and her ceaseless struggle for daintiness.

Creations for Summer.

Feeling so strongly woman's need of loving robes for her leisure, the designers have innumerable exquisite creations for the summer. The obvious feature of foremost importance is, of course, the quality of coolness. And this element has been attained by various means. Chiffons and crepes are in place of the velvets and brocades of winter. Trimmings include ruffles, valenciennes and soft shadows, and lovely bands of fliting ruffles take the place of and metallic ornaments. Cool blues and blues and orchids replace warmer orange tones and rich red colors.

thing to invite one's soul is a toga of apricot crepe and ivory lace.
Success lies in the fact that, while very simple in cut, it is draped so as to appear delightfully eccentric.
The long interrupted line of heavy drapery across the shoulders and down to below the knee is perfect in its simplicity; while the amazing idea of wearing one arm bare and mawing the other over the other is unusual.
Another charming model, less extraneous, with an interesting medieval touch of rose charmeuse, with silver streamers trailing from shoulder to ankle. The sleeves are caught up at a point above the elbow with amulets of silver and blue enamel to give the look of a Mayan age silhouette.

These models are excellent examples of the more formal types of negligees, but there are numerous possibilities for the woman who lives to be original in devising lounging robes along less usual lines. In this category are found fascinating combinations of loose satin trousers and chiffon blouses, which really aren't blouses but squares of material thrown over the head, falling into becoming folds to the hips. The obvious advantage of this type of garment is the added variety it affords the woman of limited means. For example, a cerise georgette overblouse, pleated in silver, might be worn successfully with black charmeuse trousers as with a simple white slip. Interesting cords and narrow girdles of semi-precious stones and bead ornaments are just the decorative note needed to create harmony.

Contrasted to this more or less bohe-mian type of thing, one finds demure little breakfast coats in pastel colorings with hardly any trimmings, but quaint ruffles of the same material.
These models are cut often only three-quarter length, and are worn over mil-lady's robe de nuit or a silk costume slip.

Make Negligees at Home.

With all the beautiful silks and chiffons that are crowding the market these days, there comes an excellent opportunity for the making of neg-ligees at home. They have so little shape about them. They are merely matters of lengths of material gathered into becoming folds and the amount of sewing which is necessary is, on the plainer ones at least, almost to be discounted.
They are collections of color and fine stuffs with plentiful distributions of silver and gold applied and used as foundations. Then there are widths and widths of lace, either colored or white or of metal. Everything is done to add to the flimsiness of the gown and to make it as becoming and as illustrative as possible.

A plain, straight kimono is often most satisfactory because it is there and ready to be thrown over the shoulders at almost any minute, to keep out a passing breeze or to cover one's nightie in an emergency. You can make awfully good-looking kimono from the printed silks that are now so popular, and for this sort of robe you can go the limit with colors and designs, where you might be a little timid about being so bold with a dress you expected to wear out in polite society. If you want the kimono to be as elegant as possible, then line it with a plain-toned chif-fon. In this way you manage to increase the effect of your color scheme and to create something which is really quite beautiful.

The printed challies are good, too, for this particular purpose. They have just a shade more warmth than the silks and they do come in such charming patterns that they positively inspire you to take your needle in hand and see what you can do in the way of a kimono. They can be washed again and again, which is no mean attribute for a house wrap of this sort, which may be subjected to all sorts of hard wear.

Interesting Bed Jackets.

All of these materials make lovely little bed jackets that can be slipped over the shoulders when you are having your breakfast in bed, or when a sick day or two overtakes you. It is so

Lovely Robe d'Intimate is Made From much easier to pull yourself together and to get well if you are pleased with the way you look when you are attending to the business of getting back your strength.

Then there are the little things that go along with bonnet apparel. They are always fascinating to the feminine soul. Without them—the slippers, caps, etc.—the house gown, no matter how simple it is, loses much of the best of its effect.
There are dainty little mules covered with gay brocades and lightly woven tapestries. There are others of plain satin and kid which are most amusing.
Of course, they are hard to walk in,
but they are good-looking. No one can deny that fact. For those who wish more comfort there are fatter, sorts of slippers and ones which more nearly approach a guarantee to stay on the foot.

THE NEW HATS FOR FALL

In our exclusive showings of new millinery the vogue of Paris is reflected in the many medium size shapes, the radiant greens in the new color-with felt, leather and plush fabrics but in all of these and the many original American models there is that note of individual becomingness which gives to our hats that permanent pleasure of distinction and personality. Here are some you will enjoy

DAVIS' CUP PLAY BEGINS TODAY

With Johnston Meeting Australian Anderson and Tilden Playing Hawkes.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)
By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 31.—William M. Johnston and William T. Tilden, named in the order of their appearance, will proceed this afternoon with the annual business of fooling all of the foreigners all of the time, Lincoln and P. T. Barnum regardless. The occasion is the challenge round of the Davis cup series, involving America and Australia, the time is 2:30 o'clock and the place the West-side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I. The Davis cup is the greatest trophy of all trophies for competitive sport. It has paid extended, not to say welcome visits to Sydney, Melbourne, London, Wimbledon and New York but it seems to feel more at home in America, and according to present indications, has taken up a more or less permanent residence here. The degree of permanency will be determined by the ability of the worthy Messrs. Johnston and Tilden to retain that school girl complexion.

The disposition of the cup will be settled on the basis of winning, or losing, three out of five matches, spread over a three day interval. The invaders will be represented by a two man team, namely James O. Anderson and John B. Hawkes, the latter not only quite British, but left-handed into the bargain. Johnston will meet Anderson in the first singles match and the human exclamation mark may make matters very interesting for the American. Like the general character of an egg, Anderson is good and bad by turns but when he is on his game, there is no more dangerous element in the world of tennis. Johnston, however, defeated him with greater readiness than did Tilden in the challenge round last year and should repeat.

Barring the unforeseen, the Tilden-Hawkes match will proceed to an uneventful conclusion with the American champion winning at his bland convenience. Tilden is the dramatist of the courts and likes to draw his decisions rather fine; otherwise, Hawkes hardly could be conceded a white man's chance.

Anderson and Hawkes will appear also in the doubles tomorrow against an American combination, yet to be named. It is likely that the latter will be Tilden and R. Norris Williams, although Vincent Richards, boy wonder and all that, may receive a belated nomination. The positions of the singles players will be reversed on Monday, Tilden meeting Anderson and Johnston playing Hawkes.

The great popularity of lawn tennis is best demonstrated by the announcement from headquarters that upward of 40,000 persons will view the three day proceedings.

ANCIENT CULTURE IN BURIED CITY

Tale of How Mongolian Town Fell After Siege.

OLD BOOKS ARE UNEARTHED

In the deserts of Mongolia, far away from cities and civilization, a rumor originated some years ago of a dead city, abandoned by its inhabitants for centuries and buried ever more deeply beneath shifting sands. The rumor was difficult to verify. Few explorers penetrated into this wild and desolate country. Finally, in 1907, a Russian scientific expedition, led by Professor Kozlov, set out with the purpose of searching for the city. The task was difficult because the nomadic tribes in the region were suspicious of strangers and slow to give information.

Kozlov worked with tact and patience. He employed a Mongolian familiar with the native language to go about disguised as a merchant in an effort to get some hint of the city's location. But the Mongolian was suspected as an agent of the foreigners and for a long time could obtain no information. Finally he was compelled during a storm to camp near the city itself, without being aware of it. The natives regarded this as a sign of divine intervention and made no further difficulties about guiding him to the ruins. This was how the dead city of Kara-Khoto became known to the outside world.

Buried in Sand.

When the Russian exploring party approached Kara-Khoto with their Mongolian guide they were compelled to plow through sand drifts 15 feet deep. It was this sand, together with the arid climate of Mongolia, that had preserved the city's walls and monuments over a period of many centuries. The neighboring tribesmen, who had settled near the city ten generations before, declared that it always had been there as far back as their records reached.

The streets and houses of Kara-Khoto have been largely obliterated by waves of sand. But Kozlov's party found many interesting memorials in this Mongolian Pompeii. There were the remains of Buddhist temples and Mohammedan mosques. There were packages of Chinese paper money, bearing grim inscriptions threatening counterfeiters with the loss of their heads. There were silver ornaments and money, carefully hidden away by the original owners.

The most important discovery of all was a cone-shaped monument outside the city walls. In this monument was a library of 2,000 books, written in seven Eastern languages. Several other things found in and about the city helped to piece out the legend about the fate of the tribe which formerly lived there. In the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries, so the legend ran, the Chinese had sent out an army to capture Kara-Khoto. For several years they besieged the city in vain. Then a Chinese engineer conceived the idea of cutting off the water supply. He blocked up with sandbags the river which formerly flowed through the city and turned its course in a different direction. The people, desperate with thirst, dug a deep well inside the walls, but failed to get enough water to sustain life. Then the population buried all its treasures. The chief of the tribe killed his wife and daughter with his own hand and ordered a mass sortie through a breach in the wall. The doomed tribe rushed out, only to be slaughtered in the open by the superior forces of the Chinese.

Traces Bear Out Legend.

This grim legend was borne out by discoveries of the explorers. They found that a nearby river had been artificially diverted from its channel. And the wall of the city had a large breach, through which the last desperate sortie might well have been made.

The Russians found in the monument many signs of high culture on the part of the former inhabitants. There were books in Persian, Arabic and Hindoo script, as well as volumes in Mongolian and Chinese. There was a collection of more than three hundred sacred Buddhist pictures, painted on backgrounds of cloth and silk. There were many statues of Buddhist gods and goddesses. Traces of former canals were found in the city.

After thoroughly exploring Kara-Khoto and its surroundings, Kozlov buried the less portable treasures and set out to discover Kookoonor, a lake in the vicinity which it was said no white man had ever seen, although French and German explorers had tried to reach it. The nomads who lived about the lake made every effort to prevent the travelers from launching a boat on it. They declared that the waters of Kookoonor were under a mysterious spell, that every boat would be irresistibly drawn to the bottom.

Notwithstanding these warnings, some of the members of the party embarked. They were caught in a heavy storm the first night, and the natives were certain that the wrath of the gods had been aroused. But the boat weathered the storm safely; and a skyrocket announced the arrival of the party on the other side, to the relief of Kozlov and the amazement of the Mongolians, who had never seen anything of the kind before.

Wild Buddhist Monks.

On the other side of the lake the Russians found three Buddhist monks, wild men with shaggy, matted hair and beards that had never been shaved. They were in great fear at first sight of the strangers. Later two of them proved amicable, but the third remained obstinately savage, refusing to say a word.

Lake Kookoonor did not mark the end of the expedition's adventures. Penetrating into the mountains of northern Tibet, the party encountered a band of mounted robbers, who attacked them with swarms of arrows. These were no match for the firearms of the Russians and the robbers were beaten off.

The story of these explorations was recently told by Professor Kozlov before a large and interested audience in the Moscow Polytechnical Institute. The lecture was illustrated with motion-picture views, and a map of Mongolia, showing the location of the buried city and the route of the expedition, hung on a blackboard behind the speaker's stage. Kozlov, an erect, soldierly figure, with deep-set, piercing eyes, confined himself chiefly to the narrative of his past experiences, touching only briefly on the prospects of a new exploring expedition which he is planning to lead into Mongolia and Tibet. He spoke in more detail on the latter subject in a personal interview with the writer.

The new exploring party is to be made up of seventeen Russians and four Mongolians. Leaving Petrograd it will proceed by rail to eastern Siberia. From there the route turns south, to Urga, the capital of Mongolia. The expedition is planned for three years. The first year will be spent in Mongolia, the second in Tibet, and the third will be devoted to the homeward journey, which may be through India or Chinese Turkestan.

Two Women on Trip.

"The purposes of the expedition," said Professor Kozlov, "are purely scientific."

"One novel feature of this expedition is the fact that two women will be included in the party. My wife, who once rode through Mongolia on horseback and who knows how to handle a rifle, will accompany the expedition as an ethnographer and zoologist. She is acquainted with the Tibetan language and will study the customs of Tibetan and Mongolian women. The other woman in the party, a friend of my wife, is a doctor and natural scientist. She expects to collect butterflies and other insect specimens.—New York Times.

AMERICAN WAR HEROINE IS MARRIED IN TURKEY

A romance which began in the American hospital at Stamboul, has culminated in the marriage of Dr. Baldwin Davis of Brookline, Mass., and Miss Pauline Allen of Boston, Mass., a Near East Relief worker in Constantinople for the last two years. She took a thrilling part in a fire in a building sheltering 600 Greeks. She directed the rescue work. She was highly praised in dispatches.

CULT WOULD CENSOR DRESS

Greek Zealots Attack "Immodest" Feminine Attire.

Fashionable women in Athens, Greece, and foreign women who follow the modern trend in dress, are being terrorized by the violent activities of a local organization which terms itself "the zealots of Christ."

The members of this association have taken a vow to compel modesty in women's dress by force. Women wearing low-necked gowns or going about with bare arms are often roughly handled, and the exposed parts of their persons are smeared with tar.

In several cases recently the male escorts of women thus attacked have given the roughs some very severe beatings, but nevertheless the systematic campaign of molestation goes on.

ROTARIANS TAKE HOME PRIZES

From Inter-City Meet at Port Jervis
—District Governor and Dr.
Darlington Speak.

Fifteen Kingston Rotarians visited Port Jervis on Thursday and of the 15 five brought home prizes, one bringing two, won in the athletic events that were a part of the inter-city meet program arranged by the Port Jervis Club. Owing to Kingston having four players, Carl Thompson, Boessneck and Wicks, on the Visitors' Baseball Club, and more especially owing to the fact that John Gregory umpired the game, the visitors won by a score of 39 to 3. Each player and the umpire received a handsome silver pencil. The quilt pitching, a refinement of barnyard golf, was called because of the dinner bell, with only two players left, Frank Thompson of Kingston and a Newburgh man. Each received a prize, a beautiful silver cup. Unfortunately no prize for walking was offered and the other athletes spent so much time on the Neversink Beach board walk admiring the bathing beauties that they failed to distinguish themselves at golf or in the swimming contest. District Governor Raymond J. Knoepfel and Dr. Thomas Darlington, former commissioner of health of New York city, were the speakers at the banquet in the evening.

SAUGERTIES FARM SOLD THROUGH LOCAL BROKER

On Wednesday afternoon 1. Parades of 19 Railroad avenue, this city, sold for Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Ruckaberle their farm located in the town of Saugerties. The farm is situated on the bank overlooking the Hudson river, and is one of the finest river view farms of Ulster county. It contains about 40 acres, and is well equipped. The deed was conveyed to Mr. and Mrs. James L. Woolsey of Chicago, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Ruckaberle will move to Yonkers, where he has bought out an established business in the section of Flatbush. Mr. and Mrs. Ruckaberle will be greatly missed as they have made many friends since they bought the farm about four years ago. The consideration was about $10,000. This is the fourth farm sold adjoining each other in that section within a short time by the same broker.

DAIRY FACTS

WHY COWS SUCK THEMSELVES

Where Large Number of Dairy Calves
Are Raised They Often Acquire Depraved Habit.

One of the most perplexing problems confronting dairymen, or cow owners, is the occasional bad habit developed by cows of sucking themselves. Where a large number of dairy calves are raised on skim milk they quite frequently acquire the habit of sucking their stable mates, and often this habit is continued until maturity.

There seems to be no good explanation why cows should suck themselves, and it is equally true that in the past there has been no satisfactory method of curing or preventing this bad habit. Various types of muzzles have been suggested, certain types of yokes have been tried, sticks have been attached to halters and passed down between the front legs of the cow and attached to a belt with the idea of preventing the cow from getting her head back to the udder. Most of these devices have, however, proven ineffective or inhumane, and sooner or later the cow with this habit finds her way to the butcher shop as the only positive and permanent cure.

Veterinarians have tried an operation which consists of removing a part of the side and end of the tongue, but this has not been very satisfactory.

We have found a simple device on the farm of the Georgia State College of Agriculture that appears to be 100 per cent efficient in curing the habit, and it is very inexpensive and simple to use. Take a piece of ordinary quarter-inch pipe about six inches in length, put a ring in each end like an ordinary bridle bit. Ten or twelve small holes are then bored through the pipe in every direction. This hollow bit is put into a halter, or device similar to a bridle. It has been found best to use a nose band on the bridle so as to hold the bit securely in place.

When sucking, a cow puts her tongue around three sides of the teat and presses it against the roof of her mouth. When she sucks she tends to produce a vacuum. With the hollow bit across the tongue air is admitted from the ends and it is impossible for her to draw milk, since she cannot form the necessary vacuum. After a few trials, the cow learns that she cannot suck and soon stops trying.

The device is equally effective in preventing cows from sucking other members of the herd.

The cow eats and ruminates normally with the hollow bit in her mouth. However, it is impossible for her to drink unless the water is deep enough for her to submerge the ends of the pipe.—Milton F. Jarnagin, Georgia College of Agriculture.

DAIRY COWS SHOW DECREASE

Does Not Seem Likely That Business Will Ever Suffer a Season of Overproduction.

There is little if any danger of overdoing the dairy business. In the United States at present there are fewer dairy cows per capita than there were in 1890 or 1900, and about the same number as there were in 1910. The discoveries of science have stimulated the use of dairy products. Medical advisers are encouraging more use of the product. It does not seem likely that the dairy business will suffer a season of overproduction.

GOOD DAIRYMAN FEEDS WELL

Cows Must Have Abundance of Right Kind of Feed to Give Liberal Flow of Milk.

The good dairyman is a good feeder. He knows that he must supply his cows with an abundance of feed. But he knows, too, that this feed must be of the right kind and balance if the milk flow is to be heavy. Too much roughage with too little concentrates, too small a supply of protein in the form of clover hay, gluten, or the like, a scanty supply of silage or of water, and the milk flow is cut down.

GRAIN REQUIRED FOR COWS

Amount, in Addition to Hay and Potatoes, Depends on Amount of Milk Produced.

Cows that are milking heavy or young calves should, of course, have some grain in addition to the hay and potatoes. The amount of grain required for the cows would depend on the amount of milk they are producing, and the amount required by the calves should be regulated so as to keep the calves in a good, thrifty, growing condition.

MILK CONSUMED ON FARMS

Value Nearly Equal to That of Product Sold, According to Estimates of Department.

The value of milk consumed on farms in 1922 was nearly equal to the value of the milk sold, according to estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. The farm value of milk sold is estimated at $722,000,000 and of milk consumed on farms at $636,000,000.

Make the Ball Smooth.
That a smooth round ball gets there with less resistance than a top-sided, uneven one, is a well-known truth. That's as true in work-a-day life as it is in physical figures. Your job is to cut corners and keep the smooth, speedy ball rolling in every place.

SYRACUSE SALT INDUSTRY PASSING

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Once world famous, the salt industry of Onondaga is destined soon to pass into oblivion, a martyr to progress and economy—the result of cheaper production.

A lone reminder of the great industry, once counted in the millions of dollars, is the last stack on the towpath on the Oswego Canal, near Liverpool. Once across upon acres of the famous salt lands bordering the city on the north were dotted with these monuments, where the brine was boiled and salt extracted.

This last stack, after serving more than half a century, is soon to be torn down, leaving only the rotting timbers of salt sheds and perhaps the remnants of the last boiling station at Canastota, which is soon to follow the removal of the stacks.

Of the thousands of men engaged in the industry which gave Syracuse its early name of Salina and the Salt City, there are only two—Thomas K. Gale and Thomas P. Murphy—operators of the last pumping station in the Liverpool road, under the name of Murray & Gale Salt Company.

The pumping station, showing well the many years of use to which it has been put, is now pumping from four wells, the last of all the thousands once in use. Where the salt industry annually amounted to more than $4,000,000, giving employment to thousands, now its strength is measured in a few thousand dollars, and those finding employment are less than one hundred.

A movement to preserve the last stack, the sole remaining vestige of a great industry, is under way, but so far nothing definite has been determined. The salt wells, but their course, remain forever, but their production has long been forgotten.

Cheaper methods of making salt, discovery of extensive salt mines where production costs are but a fraction of the cost of the system followed for nearly a century, caused the doom of the great industry and the passing of the salt pioneers who made Onondaga a beehive of activity in a wilderness of thousands of square miles.

EASY TO LEAD SHEEP IF YOU KNOW HOW

Tickling Base of Tail Does Business.

Most sheep lead well if properly handled, old shepherds say. Even the stubborn, fine-wool breeds will come along if they are started right. No real shepherd tried to drag a sheep by the neck or wool. From the sheep's left side he guides it, with his left arm around its neck, tickling the base of the tail with his right hand. The sheep moves—sometimes faster than is expected—but it moves.

In catching a sheep, too, there is a right way to hold the strongest ram, and a wrong one; the wrong one may let him go and will cause a bruise that takes two months to heal. Wise shepherds know that the skin is only lightly attached to the flesh, and that holding by the wool tears this tender skin loose from the flesh even farther than the hand's grip; the resulting bruise not only is painful to the sheep, but damages the carcass for market until it heals.

The best of practical tips that old shepherds pass among themselves make up a large part of the correspondence course in sheep and wool production recently included in the extension service of the state agricultural college at Ithaca.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, Aug. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Will Hillson of Albany, Dave Hillson of New York city, Mr. Joe Trunk and Mrs. Henry from Tarrytown, N. Y., are spending some time as the guests of Mrs. M. Hillson.

A. E. Neal and sister, Mrs. Connelly, of the Mountain Wave House, Edgewood, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Elvey of Phoenicia, N. Y., motored to Albany, Ravena, Rensselaerville and Westerlo, in Miss Blanch Ellis's seven passenger Studebaker car, Saturday and returned Sunday evening.

Miss Mary Gormley, who has been spending her school vacation at her home here, will begin her school duties at the Tannersville High.

A wonderful sermon was beautifully given here in M. E. Church Sunday morning by the pastor, the Rev. W. R. Meeker. A solo by one of the city guests boarding at the Kinkade House.

Mrs. De Lorm who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. El Simpson, returned to her home today.

A miscellaneous shower was given to Miss Margaret Eggenburgh. Announcement of her engagement to Mr. Reid of Binghamton, was made. Miss Eggenburgh is a niece of Mrs. Connelly and Mrs. Peet of Edgewood, N. Y.

School will begin next Tuesday. Mr. De Silva is principal.

Mr. Palmer has given up the oil station on account of ill health. Charles Ford is breaking ground for a new bungalow.

HIGH WOODS.

High Woods, Aug. 30.—The people of this place will hold their annual Labor Day fair on September 2, rain or shine. At 2 o'clock daylight, saving time, the parade will pass headed by the Glasco Band. After the parade there will be races of all kinds for young and old, great and small. Shake hands with dear old Uncle Erastus. He will be here all day to greet all of his old friends. And then at 4 o'clock there will be a bountiful repast served in the hall. There will be lots of fancy articles such as quilts, rugs, aprons, etc. Refreshments of all kinds will be for sale on the grounds. When it begins to get dark electric lights will be turned on.

NOTICE OF BOND SALE.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned, Supervisor of the Town of Woodstock, in the County of Ulster, in the State of New York, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Kingston, in said County, on the 4th day of September, 1923, at 11:00 o'clock a. m., twenty (20) bonds of the Town of Woodstock, of the par value of one thousand dollars ($1,000) each, payable two (2) on the first day of March of each of the years 1924 to 1928, both inclusive, which bonds shall bear interest at a rate of five per centum (5%) per annum, payable annually on the 1st day of March of each, and every year.

Said bonds are issued pursuant to Sections 92 and 93 of the Highway Law and Sections 12, 13 and 14 of the County Law and Sections 6, 7, 8 and 10 of the General Municipal Law, and pursuant to an act of the Board of Supervisors of Ulster County passed on the 1st day of August, 1922.

Said bonds are issued for the purpose of paying for the cost of construction of three bridges in said town.

Said bonds cannot be sold for less than par value.

Terms of sale may be obtained by applying to John W. Eckert, County Attorney, Ulster County Savings Bank Building, Kingston, New York.

Written proposals may be submitted in accordance with the terms of sale. The bids for the bonds will be received in lump sum only and not on a percentage basis.

The bonds will be first offered separately and then in block, and in the event the aggregate of the bids for the separate bonds exceeds the highest bid, the bonds will be struck down to the highest bidder for the individual bonds, but in event the highest bids for the bonds in block equals or exceeds the aggregate of the amount of the bids for the single bonds, the bonds will be struck off to the block bidder.

No bid shall be binding upon the town until the bonds have been offered both ways and actually struck off to the purchaser.

The bonds will bear date September 25th, 1923.

The town will not be liable to the purchaser or any other person for any allowance for attorney's fees in relation to said bonds or for investigating the validity thereof.

Dated, August 29th, 1923.

FIREMAN ATE THE EVIDENCE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
West Frankfort, Ill., Aug. 31.—Justice was thwarted here by the appetite of a fireman.

The case brought against Tipolite Frankl, a grocer, charged with selling a sausage with a bug, collapsed when it developed that the city's fire chief had inadvertently eaten the evidence.

The evidence—a quarter's worth of sausage sold by Frankl to Jule Sallier, a Frenchman—had been left on the table in the police court room when Jule made complaint against the grocer. The sausage was forgotten when officers and Jule went to fetch Frankl.

While the court room was vacant in strolled Fire Chief Curley Wilson. The sight of an innocent looking sausage on his honor's deserted desk gave edge to his hunger. He had no idea the sausage was to play an important part in a suit at law. In a few minutes the evidence had disappeared.

A short time later Frankl was haled into court, and Judge Crim read the complaint to the defendant. City Attorney Frank Trobaugh began to look for the evidence, which was to have been Exhibit A. It could not be found.

An investigation was started at once. It was then discovered that Fire Chief Wilson's hunger had knocked the props from under the city attorney's case.

With the evidence gone, the case was submitted to the wisdom of Judge Crim.

His honor ruled that although he did not taste the sausage, it must have been good because it disappeared so quickly.

He held further, that inasmuch as the sausage did not kill the fire chief, it probably would not have seriously damaged the good health of the complaining witness.

However, the court added, a grocer must not sell sausages with insects.

Therefore Judge Crim decided that Frankl was either to replace the missing sausage with a good one, free of contamination, or return Jule the quarter.

Frankl agreed to furnish another sausage and the case was dismissed.

WHEN PULLETS BEGIN TO LAY, WINTER THEM

It Left on Range Long. Change Checks Production.

Experienced poultrymen have found that if pullets are allowed to remain very long on the range after starting to lay, the change to winter houses is sure to check them and may cause a fall molt. Cornell backs them in saying that as soon as the first eggs are found on the range, at least a third or a fourth of the best developed birds should be placed in winter quarters.

When the remaining birds show maturity, they should be put in winter quarters also.

A thorough cleaning and disinfecting of the houses and pens in which the pullets are to live is advocated. This is especially true if the birds that formerly occupied the building have been diseased or have had worms.

When to Use Light. Artificial lights should not be used on pullets until they have had a chance to respond to normal conditions. If they do not respond quickly enough, or if neck molt starts, then light can be used with good effect.

Many flocks of pullets take cold after their removal to winter quarters because they are kept in tightly closed houses. All windows and curtains in the front of the houses should be wide open night and day until really cold weather sets in. Even in the middle of the winter, the cloth curtains should not be entirely closed.

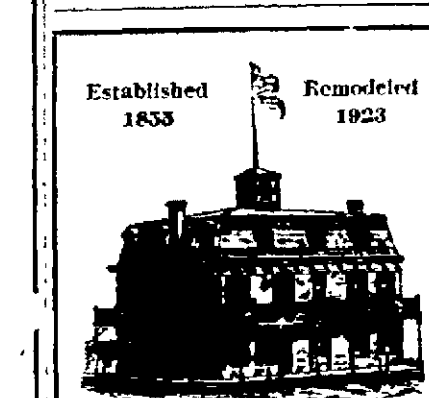

Lack of ventilation causes dampness in the houses and this, in turn, results in colds and roup.

At the Police Camp.

Commissioner Enright and John M. Shaw, a special deputy police commissioner, went to the New York city recreation camp at Tannersville, N. Y., today to review the 500 riot police who have been encamped there for two weeks. Athletic games will be played after the review. The policemen will close their stay at the camp Saturday night with a barbecue.

IMPROVED ROADS

Location of Highway Is Most Important Matter

Much is now being said and written in regard to good roads. Some one has said it is a very serious question for the people in every section of the country to consider. That is my sentiment also, says a writer in an exchange. Whatever kind of material is used in the construction of the road, be it concrete, brick or sand and gravel, it is being built with a view for all time to come, therefore the location of the road is a very important matter to be considered. Are we going to follow the old trail that our forefathers blazed for themselves through the forest which now looks, since the timber has been taken off, like a cowpath angling through the farm? The traveler is bewildered to know what direction he is going.

No, let the roads now be located on section and half-section lines when it is possible to do so. Even if it costs more it will pay for several reasons. It will add so much to the looks of the farm and country. It will avoid much danger from automobile traffic which is on the increase every year. It is easier to construct a road on a straight line than on a curve. And last but not least we are building new roads for the future. Some day farms will be made into smaller tracts with the roads located on section lines and they will then be easy of access.

Let us consider well the future importance of the location of the road before we commence building for it will mean much to us now and the future generations. If good roads mean so much to the country let us make them as straight as possible, eliminating short curves and sharp corners and we will have a road easy to follow with less danger.

Speed of Heavy Trucks Injurious to Highways

Speed—and not weight—is what ruins the roads. It is the impact, or hammer blow, of unsprung weights at excessive speeds that starts cracks, widens fissures and knocks the holes in our concrete. This has been proved by A. T. Goldbeck, engineer of tests of the department of public roads.

Extensive tests, made for the government, showed the following:

"Impact—or destructive blow—increases approximately with the square of the speed. Two trucks, for example, one running at ten miles an hour, the other at twenty. Although the latter is going only twice as fast as the former it will deliver about four times the road-ruining blow.

"This blow, for the great part, can be directly attributed to the design of the truck. A test showed a five-and-a-half-ton chain-driven truck delivered only 68 per cent of the destructive road impact that was delivered by a three-ton truck of a different design, carrying the same load and driven at the same speed.

"It is not weight, but speed. And not only speed, but the speed of the unsprung weight. It is the hammer blow which destroys.

"These facts are very significant, for they show that the gross load of the truck is not the only factor which influences the pressure of the wheels of the truck on the road surface. It is possible to have vastly different impact pressures exerted on the road by two different trucks both having the same gross weight, but having different distribution of their sprung and unsprung weights, and when the questions of road designs are to be considered, the actual wheel pressure on the road is the all-important thing rather than the gross load of the truck."

Gravel Highways Lead Other Types in Mileage

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The relative mileage of the various types of road being built in this country is indicated by figures given by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. These figures apply only to federal-aid roads, but since they represent 25,000 miles of road now in use and include roads built in every state, they may be taken as fairly representative of the character of the main highways. The 25,000 miles is divided by type as follows:

	Percent
Gravel.....	22.2
Gravel and drained.....	26.6
Cement concrete.....	15.3
Sand clay.....	10.8
Bituminous macadam.....	4.0
Bituminous concrete.....	2.1
Water-bound macadam.....	2.7
Brick.....	1.4

Complete figures covering all roads constructed and now in use would undoubtedly show somewhat higher percentages of the lower types of road, since the more important roads have been selected for improvement with federal aid.

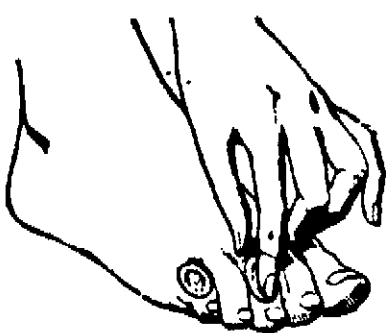

Spread Layer of Straw Over Road to Lay Dust

If you happen to live on an unpaved auto road you know how unpleasant it is to have great clouds of dust roll straight for your home with the passing of every car. Oiling the road is very effective but too expensive for the man of moderate means to consider. If the dust bothers you, try spreading a layer of straw over the road, says a writer in the Successful Farmer. I'll admit that it looks rather queer.

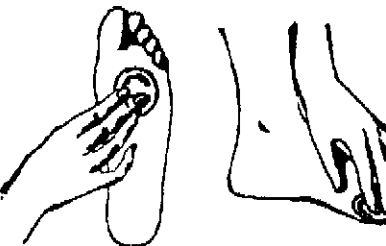

Varieties of Tomatoes.

In crossing different varieties of tomatoes to obtain red fruit one parent must be red; to obtain pink tomatoes, one parent must be pink and the other pink or yellow, and to produce yellow fruit both parents must be yellow.

CORNS—stop their pain in one minute!

Zino-pads—Dr. Scholl's new discovery—give immediate relief from pain while removing the cause. Easily applied, scientific, sure, and absolutely safe. Special shoes for corns, callouses and bunions.

Wonderful for callouses or tender spots on soles. Special shape for bunions. Easily applied. Will stay in place.

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

Made in the laboratories of The Scholl Mfg. Co., makers of Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Appliances, Arch Supports, etc.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads protect while they heal—wholly new method. Absolutely safe!

Corns are due to only one cause—friction—pressure. Heretofore, corn-sufferers have ignored this.

They have risked infection by cutting their own corns, or they have used corrosive acids to eat away the dead tissue, frequently with damaging results to the surrounding live tissue.

A famous foot specialist's new discovery

Now Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, the eminent foot specialist, has found in Zino-pads a vastly better way, a scientific way, to end corn troubles—by removing the cause.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads not only stop the pain the minute applied but they protect the corn from pressure and friction while they heal! They are easy to apply, are thin, antiseptic, waterproof. Absolutely safe; will not injure the tenderest toe.

Special sizes for callouses and bunions, too. Try Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads. Nothing like them. At your druggist's or shoe dealer's.

Put one on—the pain is gone!

RIGHT FEEDING VITAL TO GET WINTER EGGS

Use Large Quantities of Hard Grain and Plenty of Green Stuff.

The poultryman who wants to keep his pullets laying during the winter must give careful attention to feeding, say the chicken men at the state agricultural college at Cornell.

The birds, they say, must be fat, as this gives them strength and endurance. Three-fourths of the food they eat should be hard grain. Mash is not as important during the latter part of their development as when they are ready to lay. If milk is fed, little mash is necessary. They should have plenty of green food at all times.

When the first eggs are found on the range, at least one-third or one-half of the best developed birds should be placed in their winter quarters whether it be September 1st or November 1st.

Good judgment must then be exercised in feeding the pullets after they are mature and are in their winter houses. Usually eight quarts of hard grain a day is fed to one hundred birds.

One-third or one-fourth of this amount should be fed in the morning and the balance at night. When about half the birds are laying well, they may require as much as ten to twelve quarts a day.

Sometimes, however, eight quarts is too much and it is necessary to cut down on this amount until the birds can easily clean it up. Mash should always be kept before them in hoppers or feeders.

Pullets at Cornell have been found to lay best when fed three parts of hard grain to two parts of mash by weight. It is necessary to feed green food in some form, such as sprouted oats, or beets or cabbage. A small amount of milk is a valuable addition to the ration, and helps to keep the birds in good condition. The birds should never be starved, but on the other hand they should be hungry at feeding time.

The secret of long and continuous laying with a pure bred flock is to keep the birds always reasonably fat, the college concludes.

The BROWN MOUSE

By HERBERT QUICK

(Copyright by The Bobb-Merrill Company)

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Jennie Woodruff contemptuously refused to marry Jim in his young farm hand, because of his financial condition and poor prospects. He is intellectually above his station, and has advanced ideas concerning the possibilities of expert school teaching, for which he is ridiculed by many.

CHAPTER II—More as a joke than otherwise Jim is selected as teacher of the Woodruff district school.

CHAPTER III—Jim in his new position sets out to make staunch friends of his pupils, especially two boys, Newton Bronson and Raymond Simms. The latter, the son of a shiftless farmer, Colonel Woodruff, Jennie's father, has little faith in Jim's ideas of improving rural educational methods. He nicknames him the "Brown Mouse," in illustration of an anecdote.

CHAPTER IV—Jim's conduct of the school, where he endeavors to teach the children the wonders of nature and some of the scientific methods of farming, as well as book learning, is condemned.

CHAPTER V—Jennie Woodruff is nominated for the position of county superintendent of schools. The school board grows bitter in its opposition to Jim and his innovations.

CHAPTER VI—At a public meeting Jim roundly condemns the methods of teaching in the rural schools, and makes no friends thereby.

CHAPTER VII

New Wine and Old Bottles.
In the little strip of forest which divided the town from the town, two boys in earnest converse. They seemed to be Ray Trappers and from their backlands of steel-traps one of them might have been Frank Frank Merriwell and Deadshot Dick.

Merriwell, and the other Dead Shot Dick. The boy who resembled Frank Merriwell was Raymond Simms. The other, whose overalls were fringed, who wore a cartridge belt about his person, and carried hatchet, revolver, and a long knife with a deerfoot handle, and who so studiously looked like Deadshot Dick, was our old friend of the road gang, Newton Bronson. Newton put down his load, and sat upon a stump to rest.

Raymond Simms was dimly conscious of a change in Newton since the day when they met and helped select Colonel Woodruff's next year's seed corn. Newton's mother had a mother's confidence that Newton was now a good boy, who had been led astray by other boys, but had reformed. Jim Irwin had a distinct feeling of optimism. Newton had quit tobacco and beer, casually stating to Jim that he was "in training." Since Jim had shown his ability to administer a knockout to that angry chauffeur, he seemed to this hobbled, peculiarly proper person for athletic confidences.

Newton's mind seemed gradually filling up with new interests. Jim attributed much of this to the clear mountain atmosphere which surrounded Raymond Simms, the ignorant barbarian driven out of his native hills by a feud. Raymond was of the open spaces, and refused to hear feild things that seemed out of place in them.

As the reason for Newton's improvement in manner of living, Raymond, out of his own experience, would have had no hesitation in naming the school and the schoolmaster.

"I wouldn't go back on a friend," said Newton, seated on the stump with his traps on the ground at his feet, "the way you're going back on me."

"You got no call to talk thataway," replied the mountain boy. "How'm I goin' back on you?"

"We was goin' to trap all widders," asserted Newton, "and next winter we were goin' up in the north woods together."

"You know," said Raymond somberly, "that we can't run any trap line and do what we got to do to help Mr. Jim."

Newton sat mute as one having no rejoinder.

"Mr. Jim," went on Raymond, "needs all the help every kid in this settlement kin give him. He's the best friend I ever had. I'm a pore ignorant boy, an' he teaches me how to do things that will make me something."

"Learn it all!" said Newton.

"You know," said Raymond, "that you'd think mighty small of me, if I'd desert Mr. Jim Irwin."

"Well, then," replied Newton, taking his traps and throwing them across his shoulder, "come on with the traps, and shut up! What'll we do when the school board gets Jennie Woodruff to revoke his certificate and make him quit teachin'?"

"Nobody'll ever do that," said Raymond. "I'd see in the schoolhouse do with my rifle and shoot anybody that'd come to throw Mr. Jim outen the school."

"Not in this country," said Newton.

"This ain't a gun country," said Newton.

"But it orto be either a justice kentry, or a gun kentry," replied the mountain boy. "It stands to reason it must be one 'r the other, Newton."

"No, it don't neither," said Newton dogmatically.

"Why should they throw Mr. Jim outen the school?" inquired Raymond.

"Ain't he teachin' us right?"

Newton explained for the tenth time that Jim had done so many things that no teacher was supposed to do, and had left undone so many things that teachers were bound by custom to perform, that Newton's father and Mr. Bonner and Mr. Peterson had made up their minds that they would call upon him to resign, and if he wouldn't, they would "turn him out" in some way.

"What wrong's he done committed?" asked Raymond. "I don't know what teachers air supposed to do in this kentry, but Mr. Jim seems to be the only shore-enough teacher I ever see!"

"He don't teach out of the books the school board adopted," replied Newton.

"But he makes up better lessons," urged Raymond. "An' all the things we do in school helps us make a livin'."

"He begins at eight in the mornin'," said Newton, "an' he has some of us there till half past five, and comes back in the evening. And every Saturday, some of the kids are doin' something at the schoolhouse."

"They don't pay him for overtime, do they?" queried Raymond. "Well, then, they orto, instid of turnin' him out!"

"Well, they'll turn him out!" prophesied Newton. "I'm havin' more fun in school than I ever—an' that's why I'm with you on this quittin' trapping—but they'll get Jim, all right!"

"I'm havin' something betteh'n fun," replied Raymond. "My pap has never understood this kentry, an' we all has had bad times hgen; but Mr. Jim an' I have studied out how I can make a betteh livin' next year—and pap says we kin go on the way Mr. Jim says. I'll work for Colonel Woodruff a part of the time, an' pap kin make corn in the biggest field. It seems we didn't do our work right last year—an' in a couple of years, with the increase of the haws, an' the land we kin get under plow . . ."

It was still an hour before nine—when the rural school traditionally "takes up"—when the boys had stored their traps in a shed at the Bronson home, and walked on to the schoolhouse. That rather scabby and weathered edifice was already humming with industry of a sort. In spite of the hostility of the school board, and the aloofness of the patrons of the school, the pupils were clearly interested in Jim Irwin's system of rural education. Never had the attendance been so large or regular; and one of the reasons for sessions before nine and after four was the inability of the teacher to attend to the needs of his charges in a day and a half hours called "school hours."

The day passed. Four o'clock came. In order that all might reach home for supper, there was no staying, except that Newton Bronson and Raymond Simms remained to sweep and dust the schoolroom, and prepare kindling for the next morning's fire—a work they had taken upon themselves, so as to enable the teacher to put on the blackboards such outlines for the morning's class work as might be required. Jim was writing on the board a list of words constituting a spelling exercise. They were not from textbooks, but grew naturally out of the study of the seed wheat—"cockle," "morning-glory," "convolvulus," "viola," "viability," "sprouting," "iron-weed" and the like. A tap was heard at the door, and Raymond Simms opened it.

In filed three women—and Jim Irwin knew as he looked at them that he was greeting a deputation, and felt that it meant a struggle. For they were the wives of the members of the school board. He placed for them the three available chairs, and in the absence of any for himself remained standing before them, a gaunt, shabby looking revolutionist at the bar of settled usage and fixed public opinion. Mrs. Haskon Peterson was a tall blonde woman, slow-spoken and dignified, and Jim felt an instinctive respect for her personality. Mrs. Bronson was a good motherly woman, noted for her housekeeping, and for her church activities. She looked offener at her son, and his friend, Raymond, than at the schoolmaster. Mrs. Bonner was the only one who shook hands with Jim but he sensed in the little, black-eyed Irishwoman the real commander of the expedition against him—for such he knew it to be.

"You may think it strange of us coming after hours," said she, "but we wanted to speak to you, teacher, without the children here."

"I wish more of the parents would call," said Jim. "At any hour of the day."

"Or night either, I dare say," suggested Mrs. Bonner. "I hear you've the scholars here at all hours, Jim."

Jim smiled his slow patient smile.

"We do break the usual rules, I guess, Mrs. Bonner," said he; "there seems to be more to do than we can get done during school hours."

"What we came for, Mr. Irwin, is to object to the way the teachin' is being done—corn and wheat, and haws and the like, instid of the learnin' ac'ols was made to teach. I can see the whole district can see that it's under for a man that's been a farm-hand to teach farm-hand knowege, than the learnin' schools was set up to teach; but if so be he han't the book education to do the right thing, we think he should get out and give a real teacher a chance."

"What am I neglectin'?" asked Jim mildly.

Mrs. Bonner seemed unprepared for the question, and sat for an instant mute.

"We Object to the Way the Teachin' is Being Done."

Mrs. Peterson interposed her attack while Mrs. Bonner might be recovering her wind.

"We people that have had a hard time," she said in a precise way which seemed to show that she knew exactly what she wanted, "don't want our children taught about nothing but work. We want our children to learn nice things, and go to high school, and after a while to the University."

"Aren't your children happy in school, Mrs. Peterson?"

"I don't send them to school to be happy, Jim," replied Mrs. Peterson, calling him by the name most familiarly known to all of them; "I send them to learn to be higher people than their father and mother. That's what America means!"

"They'll be higher people—higher than their parents—higher than their teacher—they'll be efficient farmers, and efficient farmers' wives. They'll be happy, because they will know how to use more brains in farming than any lawyer or doctor or merchant can possibly use in his business."

"It's a fine thing," said Mrs. Bonner, coming to the aid of her fellow soldiers, "to work hard for a lifetime, an' raise nothing but a family of farmers! A fine thing!"

"They will be farmers anyhow," cried Jim, "in spite of your efforts—ninety out of every hundred of them! And of the other ten, nine will be wage-earners in the cities, and wish to God they were back on the farm; and the hundredth one will succeed in the city."

The guns of Mrs. Bonner and Mrs. Peterson were silenced for a moment, and Mrs. Bronson after gazing about at the typewriter, the hectograph, the exhibits of weed seeds, the Babcock milk tester, and the other unscholastic equipment, pointed to the list of words, and the arithmetic problems on the board.

"Do you get them words from the speller?" she asked.

"No," said he, "we get them from a lesson on seed wheat."

"Did them examples come out of an arithmetic book?" cried Mrs. Bronson.

"No," said Jim, "we used problems we made ourselves. We were figuring profits and losses on your cows, Mrs. Bronson."

"Ezra Bronson," said Mrs. Bronson loftily, "don't need any help in telling what's a good cow. He was farming before you was born!"

"Like him, he don't need help! He's going to dry old Cherry off and fatten her for beef; and he can make more money on the cream by feeding about three more of 'em. The Babcock test shows they're just boarding on us without paying their board!"

The delegation of matrons ruffled like a group of startled hens at this interpolation, which was Newton Bronson's effective seizing of the opportunity to issue a progress bulletin in the research work on the Bronson dairy herd.

"Newton!" said his mother, "don't interrupt me when I'm talking to the teacher!"

"Well, then," said Newton, "don't tell the teacher that pa knew which cows were good and which were poor. If any one in this district wants to know about their cows they'll have to come to this shop. And I can tell you that I'll pay 'em to come, too, if they're going to make anything selling cream. Wait until we get out our reports on the herds, ma!"

The women were rather stampeded by this onslaught of the irregular troops—especially Mrs. Bronson. She felt a flutter of pride in her son, but it was strongly mingled with a motherly desire to spank him. The deputation rose, with a unanimous feeling that they had been scored upon.

"Cows!" scoffed Mrs. Peterson. "If we leave you in this job, Mr. Irwin, our children will know nothing but cows and hens and sells and grates—and where will the culture come in?"

"Culture!" exclaimed Jim. "Why—why, after ten years of the sort of school I could give you if I were a better teacher and could have my way—"

"Don't bother, Jim," said Mrs. Bonner meekly, "you won't be teaching the Woodruff school that long."

All this time, the dark-faced Cracker had been glooming from a corner, earnestly seeking to fathom the wrongness he sensed in the gathering. Now he came forward.

"I reckon I may be making a mistake to say anything," said he, "for we-all is strangers hgen, an' we're pore; but I must speak out for Mr. Jim—I must! Don't turn him out, folks. For he's done mo' for us than even any one done in the world!"

"What do you mean?" asked Mrs. Peterson.

"I mean," said Raymond, "that when Mr. Jim began talking school to us, we was a pore no-count lot without any learnin', with nothin' to talk about except our wrongs, an' our amules, and the meanness of the lowa folks. You see we didn't understand you-all. An' now, we have hope. We done got hope from this school. We're goin' to make good in the world. We're gettin' education. We're all learnin' to use books. My little sister will be as good as anybody, if you'll just let Mr. Jim alone in this school—as good as any one. An' I'll be pap get a farm, and we'll work and think at the same time, an' be happy!"

PARENT-TEACHER MOVEMENT GROWS

Now Dominant National Activity of School and Home.

The modern parent-teacher associations had their beginning in mothers' meetings, inaugurated in 1855 in connection with the kindergarten movement. Out of these mothers' meetings grew the National Congress of Mothers, which was called in Washington, D. C., in 1897. Mothers and teachers discovered that they could accomplish more if united into cooperative organizations than was possible when each worked separately. Parent-teacher associations came into existence in response to the expressed need. Other organizations with various names but similar purpose came into existence also, and united in this national organization. Among them were the parents' leagues, home and school associations, mothers' leagues, mothers' unions, pre-school circles, reading circles, etc. In 1908 the National Congress of Mothers changed its name to include parent-teacher associations, and in 1915 a new charter was secured, says an educational bulletin.

The movement has developed until the parent-teacher association has become the dominant national activity of parents and teachers. Associations have been organized in every state. State organizations have been effected in forty states in affiliation with the national organization.

The national organization, called the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, is made up of state branches, which are in turn made up of local organizations. In the forty organized states the organizations are uniform in all important features. Variations occur to conform to local conditions. A complete organization of parent-teacher associations in a state may include local associations affiliated with the state, city and county councils, and a state organization affiliated with the national organization.

SIEGE OF KLAN MEETING BROKEN

Those Left in Perth Amboy Hall After Wild Rioting Escape, Under Police Protection.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Aug. 31.—Following an all night riot in which a crowd of 5,000 persons stormed a meeting of 500 Klansmen and defied police and firemen to disperse them, quiet was restored this morning when the last of the Klansmen left the city under police guard.

During the night's rioting many persons were injured, none seriously. Heads were cracked on the angry citizens charged upon the Klan's meeting hall, resisting the efforts of police with tear bombs, night sticks and revolvers, and streams of water played from fire hose, to disperse them.

The rioting was the worst attending any meeting of the Klan in this section. As the crowd stormed the hall there was a stampede of Klansmen in all directions. Some of the sheeted knights fared ill when they fell into the hands of the angry citizens. They were being badly beaten when rescued by police and state constabulary summoned to the scene.

Other Klansmen could not make their escape. There were fully 100 knights in the hall at daybreak, besieged by a dwindling crowd of attackers. As the police saw the ranks of the besiegers being thinned with the coming of day, they urged the Klansmen still in the building to flee. Police commanded a big covered automobile truck, and while they stood guard some of the knights were hustled into the vehicle. Others fled in groups of twos and threes through a rear door under police guard.

As the truck sped away a shower of bricks and stones were hurled at it. At the county bridge, leading into South Amboy, another anti-Klan crowd swarmed about the vehicle, but police beat them off, and the vehicle reached a zone of safety.

Police arrested three men charging them with carrying concealed weapons.

CHILD HEALTH EXHIBIT AT NATIONAL MUSEUM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—A new exhibit is about to be installed at the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, which, like the notable collection of the Rooseveltian chase in Africa, will also consist of trophies of the hunt. The new exhibit, however, will display the objects and weapons of a hunt of another character—the hunt for health. It is to be a permanent exhibit, to which all health organizations in the country are to contribute.

A special feature will be a novel "museum within a museum," showing methods and devices used in teaching health to children, which is being arranged by the American Child Health Association.

The child health exhibit will have four sections, one showing methods of prenatal care and instruction for mothers; a second showing work for babies in the first months of life, a third illustrating games and story methods for training very little children of the pre-school age in fundamental health habits, and a fourth, for children of school age, will consist of museum cases of "rare objects" related to health—grapes for pearls and apples for rubies, green vegetables as the "color" of health, scales for weighing as an index to health and growth, and a model of a miniature "city hall of health," built around a tall milk bottle, as the central feature of health government for childhood. Other essential health practices, such as sleep, bathing and exercise, will be similarly presented in terms of child interests.

ULSTER COUNTY MEN PASS STATE EXAMINATION.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Aug. 31.—(Special).—Announcement is made by the state civil service commission that the following residents of Ulster county have passed a recently conducted competitive examination for the position of chief guard at the institution for Defective Delinquents at Napanoch. The salary is $1,300 a year:

Rutherford H. Thompson, John C. Noonan, Nicholas Menrich, Napanoch; Edward M. Fay, 31 Park street; Wilson B. Krom, 30 Warren street; Frank D. Schouber, 11 North Main street, Ellenville. The examination was a promotion one.

Seed Potato Inspection.

SEASON TICKETS ARE NOT GOOD

The season tickets which were sold at the beginning of the season by the Colonial management will not be good for the big game with the Philadelphia Nationals on next Wednesday. However holders of the $35 reserved seat season tickets will be given their pick of the reserved seats if they make application before Sunday night at the box office at the Fair Grounds. The price of admission to the game will be somewhat larger than the regular price due to the heavy guarantee which the management is compelled to pay the Philadelphia team.

CUBANS' ESTIMATE OF THE COLONIALS

While waiting at Rhinecliff Thursday night for a train to carry them back to New York the players on the Cuban baseball club which was defeated by the Colonials Thursday made the statement that the Colonials were the best semi-pro club that they had played against this season. The manager of the club in commenting on the game said that the umpiring was the best that he had received this year and stated further that it was the first time this season that his club had been shut out.

SERIES WITH THE SILK SOX?

TWO DEAD IN CHEMICAL BLAST

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Two persons are dead, two dying and eight injured following an explosion early today that destroyed a nitro naphthalene still in the chemical works of the Barrett Company, chemical engineers, here. Firemen with difficulty checked the flames which followed the blast.
As an ambulance was about to move off with some of the injured, its driver, James Rowley, who was cranking it, was struck by a motor car, both his legs being broken. Four more of the injured are in critical condition.
The dead: Andrew Kalbas and John Kasanek of this city.
The dying: Gus Adams and Stanley Manoski, of this city.

NO GAME WITH BOSTON BRAVES

The Colonial management has decided that they will not book the Boston National league team for a game in this city on September 12. The management did not think it wise to book two games with his league clubs within a week.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 31.—Over night selling orders induced a weak tone at the opening of the stock market today, the losses ranging from fractions to more than 3 points. The greatest loss was sustained in Davison Chemical which yielded 3 1/2 points to 51 1/2. Gulf States Steel yielded 1 1/2 to 86 1/2 and Baldwin 1 point to 123 1/2. Studebaker slumped 1/2 to 105 1/2. American Woolen was 1/2 lower at 55 1/2. General Asphalt yielded slightly to 34 1/2 and Steel common was down to 92 1/2. Northern Pacific gained 1/2 to 59 1/2 but the other rails were generally lower.

After a period of weakness at the start the market turned strong during the forenoon, practically all of the early losses being recovered while many issues recovered gains ranging up to 4 points. The official confirmation of recognition of the Mexican government by the United States resulted in spirited buying of Pan American Petroleum during the afternoon on which that issue rose 2 points to 82. Mexican Seaboard rose 4 points to 113 1/2 and National Railways of Mexico, first and second preferred, heretofore inactive, sold in large volume at fractional increases.

At the Theaters.

If you like a picture that tangles with action, moves at a rapid pace and gives you a thrill a minute, don't miss "The Streets of New York," a new Arrow release which is being shown at the Auditorium today.

Shirley Mason, the dainty Fox star, will be seen at the Orpheum Theater today in her latest starring vehicle, "Youth Must Have Love," which was directed by Joseph Franz. Miss Mason's latest production is based on the story of a young man unjustly accused of the murder of an old miser, who had gained wealth and position through the unfortunate circumstances of others. How Earl Stannard, the young man, is vindicated through the never failing faith and unflinching aid of a girl provides a romance of intrigue and adventure. Also six vaudeville acts.

Chicago Grain Market.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Grain opened irregular today. Wheat was 1/4 off to 3/4 up. Corn, 1/4 to 1/2 off. Oats, unchanged to 1/4 off.

Heat Reddens Fruit.

What makes cherries red, light or heat? The question was recently discussed by the French Academy of Sciences in Paris, and the answer was heat. Some cherries, exposed to the light, remained as colorless as at first. Others, put into a dark oven, became beautifully red. Which only shows us that light alone, without heat, cannot ripen fruit, but that heat, without light, can. Many of us would have thought otherwise.

As They Have Struck Every Pay Day Since February Over Hour at Which They Should Get Their Money.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Hazelton, Pa., Aug. 31.—One thousand anthracite miners at Jeddo No. Four and Jeddo No. Seven collieries of the Jeddo Highland Coal Company struck today, the last day of the working agreement with the operators. The men walked out as a protest against being forced to wait until 3:30 p. m. for their pay.

They demand their money from 1:30 to 2 p. m. when they finish their shifts. The company claims 3:30 p. m. is the end of the eight hour day provided in the wage contract and will not make any concession to the men. For the same reason the miners have struck on pay-day every two weeks since February.

Harrisburg, Aug. 31.—The 155,000 workers in the anthracite coal district of Scranton, Hazelton and Pottsville were today preparing for another strike siege.

At the 419 pits, mines and collieries of the three districts, the workers were turning out what many of them expected would be the last pounds of hard coal mined for weeks—perhaps months.

There were others, however, who believed that if a strike does come at midnight tonight, it will be of short duration.

Orders to the maintenance men—the pumpers, fan men, guards and mule tenders—instructing them to remain at their posts and keep the mines from flooding, were received today. These orders were sent out of Harrisburg last night and were signed by Rinaldo Cappellini, of the Scranton district; C. J. Golden, of Shamokin, and Thomas Kennedy of Hazelton.

The mining towns are taking the impending strike report calmly, according to word received here. The authorities were not expecting trouble, although they have taken some precautions.

Pennsylvania state police last night visited saloons in many of the mining towns and ordered closed the places suspected of selling liquor. This precautionary move was directed by Major Lynn G. Adams, of the state police.

Port Ewen, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Maurice Everats and son, Elsworth, of Tonkers are visiting. Dr. and Mrs. Everats on Broadway and Mrs. Charles Vincent on Stout avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Mead Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Elsworth and Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Hotelling attended the clambake at Accord Wednesday evening.

Church service will be resumed in the Reformed and Methodist Churches Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sleight and son, James, and daughter, Bessie, of Salem street and Charles Wesley of Connelly motored to Stockport Sunday and were guests of Mrs. Sleight's father, James Dingman.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mable and Mrs. Mary Van Aken of Green street and Miss Loretta Van Aken and Saul Cole of Broadway motored to Grahamsville Sunday.

Miss Mattie Hyde, who has been the guest of Mrs. Eleanor Parsell on Salem street, has returned to her home in New York City.

Miss Madolyn Schererleft of Quincy, Mass., who has spent a month with her cousin, Miss Marjorie Christian on Green street, has returned home.

The following people from Port Ewen enjoyed a pot luck dinner at Watson Hollow Tuesday evening: Mr. and Mrs. George Vincent and family, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Terwilliger and sons, Frank and Earl, Mr. and Mrs. George Bonesteel and daughter, Ethel, and Mrs. Harry Vincent and son, Vincent and guests from Newark, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Mowell and family, Percy Fairbrother and Mrs. Ella Fairbrother. The trip was made by auto and the merry party broke up in the small hours of the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schroeder and daughter, Marion, and son, Billy, of New York city, who have a bungalow at Bloomingburg, Sullivan county, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lapine on Green street Wednesday.

Mrs. Thomas Tucker and daughter, Reta, of Broadway and Miss Marie Clair of Stout avenue, who have spent a few days in New York city, have returned to their homes.

B. C. Ellsworth and son, Eltinge, Ellsworth, carpenters and builders, are erecting a house for Robert Schreyer on North Broadway.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zimmerman, who have spent two weeks at Hoboken, N. J., and Asbury Park, have returned to their home on Salem street.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Schoonmaker and daughter, Ethelyn, are moving into their new home on Broadway.

Supervisor of the City of Oneonta George W. Ellis and wife and Mr. and Mrs. William Hale of Schenectady motored from Oneonta Wednesday to the home of Mrs. H. C. Christian on Green street where they were guests for two days.

"A Fool There Was" will be shown at Pythian Hall tonight at 8:30.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Everett, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Johnson and son, Everett, of New Haven, Conn., were week end guests of Aza Markle and sister on Schreyer street.

WARD TRIAL TO BE DELAYED

Owing to Mass of Evidence Justice Wagner Must Consider Before Ruling on Dismissal Motion.

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 31.—The trial of Walter S. Ward, scheduled for Tuesday, is unlikely to begin on that date, it was learned today on high authority.

Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner, with more than a thousand pages of evidence and arguments and motions to scrutinize will be unable, according to this information, to reach a decision by Tuesday on the motion of Ward's attorneys to dismiss the indictment charging him with the murder of Clarence Peters, Haverhill, Mass., sailor.

The 150 talesmen summoned Tuesday will be excused, it was said, until the following Saturday by which day, it is expected, Justice Wagner will have decided whether he will dismiss the indictment, reduce it to manslaughter or let it stand, and also whether he will admit Ward to bail in any event.

Ward's appetite has begun to break under the strain of jail routine. Although he sends out for his meals, jail attendants say he eats very little, giving most of his food to the other prisoners.

state. Miss Holz, soprano, again delighted the large audience with her excellent voice. As was the case on Wednesday night Miss Holz was accompanied by Miss Ruth Dana and also by the Welte-Mignon piano. Hanvey & Frances again brought down the house with their comedy act which is original and put on in a very interesting manner. As the last number the trained seal was again brought out on the platform and as has been the case previously he provided real entertainment for the spectators.

After the entertainment many went down the main aisle and inspected the booths which were stationed there. The large White truck was what interested the people who do not own automobiles and who are compelled to depend upon busses to see the country.

Tonight is the big night for the amateurs. After the regular program which will be put on by substantially the same people as put on last night's show all those who have aspirations to become actors will be given an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to the patrons of the exhibition. If they are good enough to impress a large number of people with their ability they will be handed $5. A second prize of $3 and a third prize of $2 will also be given away.

Saturday will be the big day when the Endicott Boys' Band will make its appearance, afternoon and evening. Miss Holz has been engaged to stay over and sing with this crack 60-piece band.

How Diamonds Are Tested.
The geological survey says that the ordinary tests to determine the genuineness of a diamond are to test its specific gravity, hardness and refractive index. When further proof is desired the stone is burned in an atmosphere of hydrogen. An ordinary fire will not affect a diamond if only the atmosphere of the air is present. Diamonds are the hardest substances known.

Women Are All the Same.
It is a funny thing, but while you can divide men into men and artists, women are all the same; they're all artists of a kind and women as well; any woman is better than a mediocre man, but no woman is as good as a clever man.—From "Last Week," by Nora D. Vines.

Mrs. Edwin Denby

Mrs. Edwin Denby, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, has accepted the invitation of the Navy Air Service to christen the Zeppelin Rigid-1, the world's largest airship, when it begins its trial trip from its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., in September.

Want to Reach 100?
Want to live a long time? Ostriches are regular octogenarians, as most of them live to be from 70 to 90 years of age, while individuals that reach the century mark occasionally occur, says Nature Magazine of Washington. These novel speedsters of the sandy plains eat grass and grain in generous amounts, and for desert consume pebbles, glass or even iron or any other scraps of metal they can get hold of. This foreign material aids them to digest their food in the same way that grit is essential in the diet of the ordinary hen.
